Challenge

DuraVent, a global innovator in the venting industry, was challenged with finding a qualified provider for localizing technical catalog content into French for their Canadian operations. In past experiences working with translation companies, they found their providers were not suited to provide high quality translation of technical material for the industrial industry.

“We had initial concerns about the accuracy of the translation and asked several questions in relation to Commit’s process.”

- DuraVent, Marketing Manager

Because of their experience with poor quality translations, their team made sure Commit was the right fit for the project.

Solution

- Proactive Communication
Created open lines of communication with all Project stakeholders:
 - ✓ DuraVent Project Managers
 - ✓ Commit Project Managers, Operations Managers, Linguists, and Business Development Personnel
- Effective Time Management across multiple countries
 - ✓ Successfully managed three time zones under a tight production schedule
 - ✓ Facilitated queries and implemented preferred content on linguistics, formatting and editing

Outcome

Commit met customer timelines by delicately and effectively managing the translation process. Through listening to client needs, the project was easily and efficiently managed. Commit provided a complete catalog in French for Canada that passed DuraVent’s internal review with zero discrepancies.
